ApolloMD began providing Radiology Services to West Georgia Health System (WGHS), a community hospital located in LaGrange, Georgia, in August 2009. Prior to ApolloMD, the radiology department struggled with turnaround times, exams often went unread, and the remainder of the medical staff did not hold the most favorable opinion of the imaging department.

ApolloMD's impact on the department was immediate. Within one month, turnaround times improved by 75%, and for the first time in history WGHS had 100% of exams completed within a 24 hour period. As a result, volumes increased, and satisfaction surveys showed that the medical staff's opinion of the radiology department had improved markedly.

"I must say that we are very excited about the impact that they are having, particularly at the physician-to-physician level."
